Special Issue on

Marginality and Regionality: Zones of Intersection

The Editorial Board invites professors, researchers, scholars, and practitioners to submit papers for our upcoming special issue on "Marginality and Regionality: Zones of Intersection." This interdisciplinary issue aims to explore the complex relationships between marginality and regionality, examining how these concepts intersect and impact various aspects of society.

Subthemes:

- Territorial Inequalities: Papers can explore how territorial inequalities manifest in different regions, and how these inequalities affect marginalized communities.
- Regional Identities: This subtheme invites papers that examine the construction and negotiation of regional identities, particularly in the context of marginalization and exclusion.
- Social Marginalization: Papers can discuss the various forms of social marginalization, including economic, cultural, and political exclusion, and how these forms intersect with regionality.
- Innovation and Development in Peripheral Regions: This subtheme encourages papers that investigate the role of innovation and development in addressing marginalization and promoting more equitable regional development.
- Power Dynamics and Regionalization: Papers can analyze the power dynamics underlying regionalization processes and how these dynamics shape marginalization and exclusion.
- Caste-based Marginalization: Papers can explore the historical and contemporary forms of caste-based marginalization and its intersection with regionality.

- Dalit Experiences: This subtheme invites papers that examine the experiences of Dalit communities in different regions, highlighting their struggles and resistances.
- Caste, Adivasi and Regional Identity: Papers can discuss how caste intersects with regional identity, shaping social and cultural practices.
- Regional Patriarchies: This subtheme invites papers that examine the regional variations of patriarchal systems and their impact on women's lives.
- Women's Agency and Resistance: Papers can discuss how women resist and challenge marginalization in different regional contexts.
- Urban-Rural Divide: Papers can explore the social, economic, and cultural differences between urban and rural areas, and how these differences shape marginalization.
- Rural Marginalization: This subtheme invites papers that examine the specific forms of marginalization experienced by rural communities, including issues like lack of access to sources and services.
- Urban Informality: Papers can discuss the experiences of marginalized communities in urban informal settlements, highlighting issues like housing, sanitation, and livelihoods.
- Territorial Inequalities: Papers can explore how territorial inequalities manifest in different regions, and how these inequalities affect marginalized communities.
- Regional Identities: This subtheme invites papers that examine the construction and negotiation of regional identities, particularly in the context of marginalization and exclusion.
- Social Marginalization: Papers can discuss the various forms of social marginalization, including economic, cultural, and political exclusion, and how these forms intersect with regionality.
- Power Dynamics and Regionalization: Papers can analyze the power dynamics underlying regionalization processes and how these dynamics shape marginalization and exclusion.
